This class covers major issues dealing with modern crowd control. The class is about 75% outdoors and 25% classroom. All students will lead and understand every role needed to manage crowds of all sizes.

Whether you are currently responsible for or are anticipating the need for a crowd management option, this course should be the foundation of your program. Featuring experiences from acts of civil disorder to large-scale riots, this 3-day course develops the line officer and supervisors for the complex challenges they will face during these dynamic events. Defense Technology Training uses a multi phased-ed approach, which includes core skill development, prior event analysis, decision building drills, policy and legal review, training protocols, and supervision aspects for operating such a team. Topics include mass arrest procedures, the use of riot shields and riot batons, protest strategies, legal considerations, arrest team training, and the use of less lethal options. Students will receive an instructor's certificate in crowd control tactics as well as an operator's certificate as a less lethal operator.

Required Equipment:

Eye and hearing protection

Body armor

Leather tactical gloves

Gas mask

Riot gear/uniform

Duty gun belt

Grenadier for Crowd Management Instructor

The two-day Grenadier operator Course takes the concepts of less lethal options and focuses them in a crowd management environment. Over the course of the two days, our instructors will discuss each related munition, lessons learned from recent events and which less lethal options haven proven successful to resolve situations with minimal uses of force.

Required Equipment:

Eye and hearing protection

Body armor

Leather tactical gloves

Gas mask

It is recommended, however not mandatory to bring your own 40mm launcher and/or a 12 ga. pump "Less Lethal" shotgun
